The origin of the name of the town of Flagstaff is not generally known, except to a few. The incident which gave it its name, is as follows. On Independence Day, centennial year, 1876, a small party, known as the Boston colony, consisting of Geo. C. Webster, J. A. Wilson, Robert Kennedy and others, while traveling through the country, went into camp on the site of the present town, At that time there was no habitation near. Overflowing with the patriotism characteristic he true American citizen and particularly of the Bostonian, they decided to relebrate the day in American style. To do so they cut down a tall pine sapling, stripped it of its foliage and bark and erecting it in a perpendicular position, unturied from it the stars and stripes. On breaking camp they left the flagstaff standing, and a few years later, when the line of the ratiroad was located there and a town established Erwin Baer, the photographer, had the it was given the name of Flagstaff in honor of the liberty pole still standing, which had been erec.ed by this Boston colony.

How the Jury Stood. From a Los Augeles paper it is learne that when the jury went out last Friday noon in the Perkins-Baldwin case they merely organized and went to dinner. On returning the first ballot was unanimous for the plaintiff. It appears that the mind to the jury was made up pretty well or that point, before the argument by counsel began at all. This, of course, transpired after everything was done by comparing notes. After this was settled as a fact by ballot, the next thing was the amount. The first ballot cast to settle this showed seven votes for $250,000 damsg s and one for $20,000. The other four were from $50,-000 to $150,000. On the second ballot there were eight for $150,000. It took four her hands.
